PRESS RELEASE

The Embassy of Italy in Sweden organises an ‘Italian-Swedish Forum on Research and Innovation’ together with Angelini Pharma Nordics and Chiesi Nordic, Swedish branches of the renowned Italian pharmaceutical companies, and with the participation of the Italian Medicines Agency and the Swedish Medical Products Agency.

On the afternoon of 25 September 2024, experts and relevant stakeholders will provide an overview of the exchange opportunities between the countries on the processing of real world data in science, with particular regard to the pharmaceutical and patient care sectors.

‘With almost 70,000 sector operators, Italy is among the world’s leading pharmaceutical clusters and the leading producer of medicines in Europe. The ability of companies to combine high levels of quality, innovation, and productivity supports the development of the sector, exports and the attraction of significant investments, especially in R&D, amounting to approximately 2 billion Euro in 2022 alone ’ reports the Italian Ambassador to Sweden, Michele Pala.

‘Angelini Pharma is dedicated to improving patient outcomes through collaboration. This forum allows us to explore the synergies between Italy and Sweden, utilizing real-world data, data imaging and advanced technologies to drive innovation and tackle healthcare challenges together. ‘ says Fräs Anna Andersson, General Manager at Angelini Pharma Nordics.

Olav Fromm, managing Director at Chiesi Nordic agrees on the importance of collaboration: ‘I look forward to continue and deepen the collaboration with other companies, healthcare professionals and researchers that want to develop solutions for patients with unmet needs as well as finding solutions to a sustainable health care system. I truly believe that we are stronger together‘.

Britta Stenson, Head of Global Industry Network for Life Science at Business Sweden, will moderate the event.
